

OFFICERS TOLD: KEEP OUT OF MEXICAN-AMERICAN AREA

Vow to Shoot Police Because One Killed Boy

By WALT MURRAY

Anonymous callers Friday night threatened to shoot Stanton policemen who enter the city's Mexican-American district, after a reserve officer killed a fleeing teenager and the youth's mother took poison.

Police said they received several calls warning them to stay out of the barrio in the northwest part of the small West Orange County city, where 18-year-old Paul Meza Aguilera was shot to death early Friday. Officers said they would continue "normal patrol" in the area, but alerted neighboring cities of Garden Grove, Cypress and Anaheim of possible trouble.

Meanwhile, District Attorney Cecil Hicks said his office is investigating the fatal shooting, which took place near Chestnut Street and Pacific Avenue at 2:30 a.m.

The bullet that killed young Aguilera was fired as a warning, according to Reserve Officer Allen Christian, 42, who shot the teen-ager while chasing him down an alley.

Police had stopped Aguilera and a companion because they suspected the teen-agers were under the influence of narcotics, officers said.

The dead boy's mother, Mr. Vera Meza Vasquez, 34, of 10552 Chestnut St., was in satisfactory condition at Orange County Medical Center Friday night after swallowing household disinfectant upon learning of her son's death.

Stanton Police Chief Paul Mohatt said Reserve Officer Christian and Patrolman Carl Bradley stopped Aguilera and Jerry Naranjo, 18, of 10692 Court St. for questioning while on routine patrol.

Mohatt said the two officers detained the pair while they radioed Sgt. George Boudreau for assistance. When the sergeant arrived and began questioning the suspects, Naranjo turned and started to run, Mohatt said. Sgt. Boudreau chased him, caught him and placed him in handcuffs.

Mohatt said Aguilera ran in the other direction, pursued by Christian and Bradley. The youth dashed up a nearby alley about 150 feet ahead of the officers.

Christian said he yelled three times at Aguilera to halt, then fired what he intended to be a warning shot. The slug struck the youth in the head.

Aguilera's companion, Naranjo, was booked on suspicion of resisting arrest and possession of dangerous drugs. Chief Mohatt, in announcing that Hicks' office would investigate the shooting, said his police department "is not of adequate size and doesn't have adequate facilities to investigate a case of this nature."

"And since a police officer is involved in the shooting, the case was turned over to the district attorney so the investigation would be unbiased," he said.

He said Christian, who owns a company in Huntington Beach which leases heavy construction equipment, had been on the reserve force two years. The department employs several reservists who are law officers, but they work only limited hours.

Hicks said there was a dispute as to where Christian was standing when he fired the fatal shot, but it was between 125 and 175 feet away from Aguilera.

Rain obliterated telltale footprints in the alley, he said.

Hicks said ballistics tests were being run on the .38-caliber slug that killed Aguilera, and a chemical analysis was being run on pills found in the teen-ager's possession.

The case may go before the county grand jury.

ACTION LINE is your service, solving your problems, getting your answers, cutting red tape and standing up for your rights. To get them, write ACTION LINE, Box 230, Long Beach, Calif. 90801, or dial 432-3451 between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m., or 5 p.m. and 9 p.m., Monday through Friday. Questions to be answered are selected for their general interest and helpfulness.

Tired Window Climbing?

Q. I'm putting a new doorway in my bedroom. How can I find the uprights in the wall without tearing it apart? C.V.A., Long Beach.

A. Most hardware stores sell a small, inexpensive "stud-finder" which will do the job. The device is usually a clear plastic cylinder with a magnet balanced inside. The end of the cylinder is placed against the wall and moved slowly to the left and right. When the magnet passes over a nail it will react to it. Since all nails in the wall are driven into the studs, once you've found two nails in a vertical line, you've got one of the studs.

Seeing Stars

Q. I would like to take my family to Mt. Palomar Observatory. Is it open Sundays to the public? E.B., Long Beach.

A. The observatory, with the largest telescope on earth, is open daily during the winter months from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., says Mrs. Frank Greelee, stewardess. The museum, containing pictures and data of stars and galaxies, is open daily until 4:30 p.m. Located about 35 miles inland from Oceanside, the observatory can be reached by taking the San Diego Freeway to Oceanside. Out of Oceanside take Highway 76 to State Route 6 which goes up to Palomar Mountain. When you reach the museum atop the mountain, you will see a sign, which serves as a guideline for the observatory researchers. "Astronomy's task is to define the structure and substance of the universe; what is in it and where, how and where it began, and what is happening to it now." Astronomers are aided in their search by the 530-ton Hale telescope, commonly known as the "Big Eye" because of its 200-inch-diameter mirror. The telescope collects light on its mirror surface, reflecting it into a camera for a photographic record. Visitors can view the "Big Eye" from a glass enclosure, but Mrs. Greelee says they cannot see it close up, because their body heat might warp the mirror, which took 20 years to plan and build.

And Bonneville, Too

Q. Could you get me the names and addresses of any magazines published in Utah that use material extolling the beauties and wonders of the state? E.B.H., Lynwood.

A. The Utah State Chamber of Commerce told ACTION LINE there was no single magazine in the state which publishes such material. However, the Chamber is sending you a copy of the book, "Utah — The Incredible Land," by Ward J. Roylance, which is described as "a guide to the Beehive State." The chamber is also sending a packet of material published by the Utah Travel Council which also describes various facets of the state.

One-Way Contract

Q. I contracted to have an addition put on my house back in October. When the house was about two-thirds complete, the contractor skipped with $3,000 of my money, leaving the subcontractors unpaid. They have now notified me they intend to file liens against my property. Is there anything I can do to keep from losing my house? B.H.L., Montclair.

A. At this point, advises the Long Beach Legal Aid Foundation, your only recourse is civil action against the contractor — if you can find him. California law permits anyone who furnishes construction labor or materials for a job and is unpaid to file liens against the property involved. There are several ways of protecting yourself in the beginning against such unhappy endings. The cheapest way is to find out about the contractor's work and reputation. The California State Contractor Licensing Board, the Better Business Bureau and the Builders Exchange can all give you information on a particular contractor's honesty and reliability. A more expensive but surer way of protecting yourself and your property is to require the contractor to post a completion bond. The cost of the bond will probably be passed on to you and will vary with the dollar-value of the job. Nonetheless, in the case of a contractor default, you won't be paying for the work and materials a second time through subcontractor or material supplier liens.

SOUND OFF!

While stopped at a red light downtown the other day, I observed a mother, her arms loaded with packages, walking down the street followed by a boy of about 2. She was tall, so her stride was causing the child to run to keep up. After about half a block of running, a child that age invariably will get tired and start to cry. Most parents will slap the poor child, thinking he is spoiled and just wants to be carried. I raised two and no doubt was guilty of the same thing. But it isn't really fair. Please, parents, walk a little slower. Those little legs aren't as long as yours. T. H., Bellflower.

SAIGON, Saturday (AP)—U.S. Navy jets attacked an airfield four miles southeast of Haiphong today, military headquarters reported. The air strike apparently signaled the end of a month-long U.S. restraint on bombing around North Vietnam's two key cities during attempts to get peace talks started.

The strike at Cat Bi airbase, last hit in a radar-guided strike Jan. 9, came one day after U.S. State Department officials in Washington said President Johnson had lifted restrictions on bombing Meanwhile, along the northern frontier of South Vietnam early today, U.S. Marines awaited a predicted big offensive from an estimated four North Vietnamese divisions deployed in and near the demilitarized zone.

Hershey Hints Big Draft

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey said Friday that crisis situations such as the hijacking of the USS Pueblo off North Korea may mean higher draft calls.

"Anytime anything happens any place, we ought to brace for higher draft calls," Hershey said. "But I can't plan to deliver more people until the armed services ask for them. Obviously, we're planning for more people."

Hershey's remarks came during a 10-minute news conference with Gov. Ronald Reagan of California after a courtesy visit to the Republican governor.

The director said the nation must remain on the alert during world crises like the hijacking and last summer's Mideast flareup.

He said the April draft call was in operation, but did not indicate if it would be increased.

While Reagan and Hershey talked to newsmen, 50 young antidraft demonstrators chanted outside

24 Abandon

Sinking Ship

NEW YORK (AP)—The 22-man crew and two passengers of a Canadian coastal freighter abandoned ship Friday night in the stormy Atlantic some 550 miles off Cape Hatteras, N.C., the Coast Guard reported.

The crew and the passengers, a man and his wife, clung to life rafts being knocked about by eight-foot waves, the Coast Guard said.

A Coast Guard plane sighted the 24 persons near the listing ship.

THE NORWEGIAN freighter Vinnl was then two hours from the scene, the Coast Guard said.

The first call for help from the Charney, out of Quebec, was received at 6:22 p.m. It said the ship was leaking, had four feet of water in one hold and could float for only four hours.

Then, just 10 minutes later, the Coast Guard said the captain radioed again and said he would abandon ship in 10 minutes.

"I think we may turn over," the captain radioed. "When we abandon ship we'll try and stay close to the vessel . . . I will give the order to abandon ship in 10 minutes."

That was the last radio contact the Coast Guard had with the ship.

The Coast Guard plane hovered over the life rafts and dropped flares to light up the scene for rescue ships.

The ship was the second to be hit by the heavy seas off the Atlantic Coast. A Liberian tanker was being helped by a tug off Cape Hatteras.

TWO LONG-RANGE aircraft and a Coast Guard cutter were rushed to the spot where the Charney was last heard from.

Seas in the area ran to eight-foot swells with winds at 25 knots, the Coast Guard said.

The Charney, built in 1948, is listed as a 313-foot, 2,068-ton coastal freighter owned by North Shipping and Transportation, Ltd. of Quebec.

The stricken Liberian freighter Pegasos, meanwhile, trailed a 4,500-foot oil slick—one that could prove to be a pollution problem—as it rendezvoused with the tug off Cape Hatteras.

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—A 300-foot Navy fleet oiler, the USS Severn, loaded with 8,700 barrels of oil, ran aground Friday afternoon on Newton Rock off Jamestown. Two oilers were standing by to pump the cargo from the vessel if necessary.

Clearing Expected

in Southland Rain

The rains that fell gently over the Southland Friday night — but managed to cause widespread freeway havoc — are expected to abate over the weekend.

The weatherman sees Long Beach and most other Southland areas having a partly cloudy but otherwise dry weekend.

Though the showers totaled barely one-tenth of an inch in most locales, they put a huge crane into a skid that turned 30 miles of the San Bernardino Freeway into one of history's wildest traffic jams.

The truck crane belonging to a North Long Beach firm skidded into the center support of a pedestrian bridge over the freeway in East Los Angeles, causing a series of other traffic crashes and forcing complete closure of the freeway in both directions.

As the showers continued to sprinkle on the early morning scene, commuters accumulated for miles. By 9 a.m., the eastward jamup extended 30 miles to Pomona.

Vance Heading for So. Korea

WASHINGTON — President Johnson dispatched troubleshooter Cyrus R. Vance to Seoul, Korea, Friday night to talk with President Chung Hee Park about the "grave threat" of North Korean hostile acts. Vance, former deputy secretary of defense, was accompanied by State and Defense Department officials.

In connection with a discussion of measures the two governments are taking to deal with hostile acts against them, the White House said, Vance will talk with the Korean chief executive about the $100 million in additional military aid Johnson has asked of Congress. Meanwhile, U.S. and North Korean representatives held their fifth private meeting at Panmunjom Saturday. U.S. military authorities were trying to arrange the release of one dead and three injured among the 83 crewmen seized on the USS Pueblo.

Reds Losing 10-1

SAIGON — The U.S. command said Saturday the Communists were losing 10 killed for every allied soldier slain in the first 11 days of the Reds' Tet offensive. The command said 27,706 Communists had died in the first 11 days and six hours of the offensive, which began Jan. 29. Another 5,019 suspects had been captured. Allied deaths stood at 2,707, including 920 Americans. A total of 11,519 allied soldiers have been wounded in the offensive, including 4,561 U.S. troops. Meanwhile, U.S. Navy jets struck near Haiphong today, signaling the end of the ease-up on bombing near the North Vietnamese port city and Hanoi. Fighting continued in Saigon and Hue, while the Reds poured supplies through a hole in our defenses near Khe Sanh. (See details, Page A-1; Related Stories, Page A 7).

U.S. Denies Bombing

WASHINGTON — The Defense Department Friday denied Communist Chinese claims that U.S. war planes bombed Chinese freighters at North Vietnamese ports Jan. 20 and 27.

Terrorists Get Life

PRETORIA, SOUTH AFRICA — A judge sentenced 33 Africans Friday to prison terms on charges of terrorism in neighboring South-West Africa. At the U.N. in New York, the news brought a call for an urgent Security Council meeting. Supreme Court Justice J. F. Ludorf sentenced 19 of the South-West African defendants to life in prison.

Cubans Hijack Boat

WASHINGTON — A small group of Cubans hijacked a Cuban ferryboat at knife-point and forced it to go to the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo. Three Cuban men and an 11-year-old boy were in the group that got off at the U.S. naval base, then allowed the ferryboat to go its way.

Arab-Israeli Flareup

TEL AVIV — The army clashed with Arab saboteurs north of Jericho Friday. Five Arabs and one Israeli soldier were killed. An Israeli army patrol flushed seven Arab saboteurs in the Jordan River valley in Jordanian territory occupied by Israel in the Arab-Israeli war last June.

Casanova's Charter

LONDON — The House of Commons Friday backed a bill for easier divorce over the protests of women who called it "a Casanova's charter." Cheers greeted announcement that the bill was carried on second reading by 159 votes to 63. The voting crossed party lines, with the Labor government maintaining a strictly neutral attitude.

Railroad Strike Settled

ST. LOUIS — A strike against the Missouri Pacific Railroad ended Friday afternoon, a MoPac official said. The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen struck the railroad late Monday over the issue of crew sizes.

Broker Nabbed in L.A. Looting

Combined News Services

NEW YORK — FBI agents arrested stockbroker Alan Irving Segal, 44, Friday and charged him with disposing of securities taken in a $488,732 looting of a Los Angeles brokerage firm. Two young women employees of the firm, who police say figured in the theft, were slain within a few weeks in Hollywood, Fla. Segal, a nightclub operator and stock broker, was arrested after an indictment was handed up earlier Friday. The FBI earlier charged Spiro William Halikas on Dec. 27, 1967, with having disposed of $20,000 worth of securities stolen from the Los Angeles firm of Ruter, Jackson and Gray in November 1967, during the time in which the two murder victims were employed there. The slain women were Terry Rae Kent Frank, 23, and Annelie Maria Mohn, 21.

SNCC Seeks UN Action

LOS ANGELES — James Forman, leader of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, Friday claimed the organization would take the racial trouble in Orangeburg, S.C., to the U.N. Forman announced the plan at the Black Power headquarters here. He termed the deaths Thursday night of three Negro students as "the Orangeburg Massacre." South Carolina Gov. Robert McNair put Orangeburg under a night-time curfew Friday and blamed Black Power advocates for the violence.

Father Groppi Guilty

MILWAUKEE — The Rev. James Groppi, fiery civil rights leader, Friday was found guilty of resisting arrest during a violence-marked demonstration during the height of Milwaukee's open housing controversy last summer. The jury of nine men, one a Negro, and three women deliberated 2 hours and 45 minutes. Father Groppi and about 12 uniformed commandos of the Milwaukee Youth Council of the NAACP stood stonily as the verdict was read. County Judge F. Ryan Duffy Jr. did not pass sentence. He set defense motions and possible disposition for Monday. The maximum sentence is a year in jail and a $500 fine.

LBJ Signs 'Viet Bill'

WASHINGTON — President Johnson signed an executive order Friday designed to make federal jobs available to about 15,000 Vietnam War veterans while they go to college.

GM Strike Averted

DETROIT — A last-minute agreement averted a walkout by 16,500 workers at General Motors' Pontiac Division Friday. An at-the-plant working agreement was reached in a 29-hour bargaining session between GM and UAW within an hour of a strike deadline.

4-Month Freeze Ends

WASHINGTON — The Defense Department ended Friday a four-month freeze on about $800 million in military construction projects unrelated to the war in South Vietnam.

HIJACK FAILS

SOUTH VIETNAM — A Marine dressed like a "Hell's Angel" Friday tried to hijack an airliner as it prepared to take off for Hong Kong with 83 U.S. servicemen aboard. He was disarmed after holding the crew at bay with a pistol for almost three hours. The gunman was Marine Pfc. William Clark, who was attached to an artillery battalion with the First Marine Division. The sandy-haired Clark, dressed in a black leather jacket, jeans and a cowboy hat, was finally disarmed by crewmen of the Pan American World Airways DC6 as air policemen touched off tear gas grenades inside the plane. The pilot refused to take off in the belief the gunman might change the plane's destination to a Communist country.

Combined News Services

Two bright stars in the Republican galaxy, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and New York City Mayor John V. Lindsay, collided Friday over New York's mounting garbage crisis. The friction was as public as the 10,000 tons of trash accumulating daily on metropolitan streets.

It started when Rockefeller pushed aside a plea from Lindsay that he call out the National Guard to take over for the illegally striking garbage collectors. Instead, the governor obtained the temporary release from jail of union president John DeLury and went on television to announce setting up of a five-man mediation panel.

The panel early Friday suggested a $425 yearly raise for the sanitation workers, who now receive salaries ranging from $6,424 to $7,956. Union shop stewards accepted the proposal but Lindsay turned it down.

"The central issue," Lindsay said, "is whether New York City can be blackjacked into awarding exorbitant contract demands to a union (that is) willing to break the law and threaten the health, safety and welfare of 8 million people. The city will not submit. I will not pay blackmail." Especially irksome to Lindsay were reports that Rockefeller had said he would assist if the mayor "admits he's lost control of the situation."

"I can call out the National Guard and if necessary I will," Rockefeller said. "But there are very real risks (to) the stability and structure of organized labor..." He said the peace formula that Lindsay rejected would have cost only $250,000 a year more than the $4 million he said the city was willing to pay.

Relations between Rockefeller and Lindsay have never been warm. In 1965 Rockefeller persuaded a reluctant Lindsay, then a four-term congressman, to make a long-shot run for mayor in heavily Democratic New York. Rockefeller loaned money and men. Lindsay campaigned with style and charm — and won. But the two remained basically aloof.

MONKEE

There is a new little "monkee" in the Hollywood household of television star Mike Nesmith. The actor-musician's wife, Phyllis, gave birth to a 7½-pound Jonathan Darby Sunday in Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital. Doctors reported Friday both mother and child are "doing fine." Nesmith, star of the NBC-television series "The Monkees" and his wife also have a 3-year-old son, Christian.

NEW FEUD

Los Angeles — Mayor Sam Yorty Friday accused Sen. Robert Kennedy of slandering Los Angeles' garbage, disregarding New York's garbage and impairing the war effort in Vietnam.

"Sen. Bobby Kennedy," said Yorty in a prepared news release, "ought to quit telling stories to the nation over national television about Los Angeles' sanitation and get busy helping Mayor John Lindsay solve New York's serious garbage problem."

Earlier this week, Yorty said, the New York senator appeared on the Johnny Carson show and told temporary host Harry Belafonte that a youngster from Watts was unable to register a complaint about his neighborhood with the city sanitation department because of his age. A check with the City Department of Public Works in Los Angeles disclosed any person — whatever his age — can register a complaint. Callers are never asked their age, anyway, the mayor noted.

"Can you imagine Bobby calmly criticizing Los Angeles' Sanitation Department while New York City's eight million people and its mayor are faced with such a grave situation?" Yorty questioned.

NO STAY

Henry Ford II announced Friday in Washington he has no plans to leave his Ford Motor Co. post or take a federal government job.

The announcement through the Ford office was aimed to quell reports that began Wednesday after high level executive shifts in the Ford management.

Previously neither Ford nor the White House had shut the door completely on such a possibility.

AUTOPSY

Investigators Friday conducted a "psychiatric autopsy" into the death of actor Nick Adams in an attempt to determine whether he accidentally took a fatal drug overdose or committed suicide.

The "psychiatric autopsy" by the human behavioral unit of the coroner's office in Los Angeles was ordered when regular autopsy results showed Adams died of "paraldehyde intoxication." Paraldehyde is a liquid sedative sometimes given to alcoholics to prevent withdrawal symptoms.

A source close to the actor said he had been drinking heavily because he was despondent over his marital problems.

REGISTER

The president of the National Rifle Association (NRA) Friday asserted all machine guns "should be registered" despite a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision that such registration amounted to self-incrimination.

The High Court last week knocked out provisions of the 1934 National Firearms Act which required registration and taxes on sawed-off shotguns, machine guns, silencers and other exotic hardware.

Harold W. Glasen, however, said the NRA "thinks the ordinary citizen has no right to possess" such firearms.

"I think they should not only be registered; I think all traffic in them should be banned. We are against them."

ORANGE COUNTY JE 0-3366

Sen. Schmitz Rips Reagan On 'Big Spending'

By BOB SCHMIDT
From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Ronald Reagan's claim that his is an "economy administration" Friday was challenged by Republican Sen. John G. Schmitz of Orange County.

Reagan's economy, as reflected by his 1968-69 budget, is an image which does not survive an examination of the facts, Schmitz said.

The Orange County senator, the only declared member of the John Birch Society in the Legislature, has been frequently critical of Reagan's fiscal policies. Last year, he refused to sign the bill containing a $1 billion tax increase asked for by the governor.

Friday, he produced figures showing that state spending under the Reagan administration, if maintained for eight years, would be twice the average maintained by his predecessor, Edmund G. Brown.

"This certainly does not change the fact that Pat Brown was the biggest spender in California history up to this time," Schmitz said. "But these figures show that so far, on the average, his successor is spending even more."

"The excuse of the 'Brown deficit' is no longer available," Schmitz said. "The only possible explanation for spending of this magnitude which might preserve the image of an economy administration is that laws now on the books, independent of the budget, require these huge annual increases.

"But laws can be changed. They can be repealed. The governor can ask the Legislature to change or repeal the laws which now require big spending — and if the legislature refuses to do so, the issue can be taken to the people in the fall elections."

"So far this has not happened. All that has happened is that in two years we have been asked by an 'economy' administration to spend over a billion dollars more to increase the size of government and its handouts."

Schmitz said the increase of the 1968-69 budget's proposed expenditures over the '67-68 budget is 12.3 per cent, a significant fact since the governor himself claims the increase is only 7.1 per cent.

Schmitz said he had been told that the state's annual population growth and inflation factor would account for a yearly budget increase of 6 per cent.

"The average annual spending increase under Gov. Brown was 10.1 per cent," Schmitz charged. "The average so far under Gov. Reagan is 11.4 per cent."

"These facts may seem almost incredible to the many who still believe the promises made during the 1966 campaign, and since. But the cold statistics—based on figures I have obtained from the legislative analyst, whose office reviews state financing on a full-time basis — speak for themselves."

Schmitz's comments are expected to widen even further the already existing breach between himself and the governor. Last Tuesday at his regular weekly press conference, Reagan was asked to comment on Schmitz's criticism of the appointment of Caspar W. Weinberger as state director of finance.

"Senator Schmitz and I don't always agree on

SEN. SCHMITZ
Challenges Reagan

things," Reagan said, "and I'm not going to hold my breath until we do."

5 Nurses Testify to Archerd 'Calm' in Death of Wife

Five nurses testified Friday that William Dale Archerd appeared "quite calm" when his seventh wife was admitted to Pomona Valley Hospital in November of 1966.

Mrs. Mary Brinker Post Arden died one day after her admission, and her symptoms were similar to those of two other persons whose deaths have been diagnosed as insulin poisoning, officials said.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Raymond Daniels called the five nurses to the stand to report on the attitude of the suspected killer when his wife was admitted to the hospital.

Archerd, who changed his name to Arden when he married his seventh wife, is charged with the murders of two wives and one nephew. He is also suspected in at least three other murders — all involving injection of insulin.

Archerd's calm, methodical manner of entering his ailing wife into the Pomona Valley Hospital was detailed by a neighbor who helped him take her there from China, by the hospital's admitting clerk and by the five nurses.

The defense attorney, Philip Erbsen, won from one of the nurses the admission Arden (Archerd) didn't act suspicious.

"Did you see Mr. Arden carrying a syringe?" Erbsen asked.

"No I didn't," Jo Anne Sacomano admitted.

Archerd's triple murder trial is being heard by Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Adolph Alexander, sitting without a jury.

The 57-year-old Kuchel drove to Sacramento a day after he announced he will seek a fourth term, and delivered a message aimed at the Sacramento Valley — a big farming area dependent on vast federal flood control and irrigation projects.

HE TOLD A NEWS conference at the Capitol that he won authorization of between $1.5 billion and $2 billion worth of federal water projects for California in recent years, and saw about $1 billion appropriated toward their construction.

Recognizing that some conservative Republicans aren't satisfied with his record, he said that, "If the people disagree with me, I will abide by their decision."

Accompanying Kuchel to Sacramento was his wife, Betty, and a group of campaign advisors. He planned meetings with Republican supporters in the legislature, and a speech to the State Junior Chamber of Commerce convention Saturday.

HIS FIRST CALL was on Reagan, for a 30 minute chat in the governor's office. Before they went behind closed doors, Reagan and Kuchel chatted amiably while photographers took their pictures.

Kuchel, who lived in Sacramento for years while serving in the legislature and as state controller, asked Reagan about the weather. It was a chilly, damp Sacramento day and Reagan remarked the weather here was "like a boil — you never get used to it." He said he hoped the warm weather would come soon.

AFTERWARDS, KUCHEL said Reagan reaffirmed in their private area in its plans and projections for a rapid transit system."

The bill would enable the district to "extend its studies to include any city or unincorporated area not within the territory of the district" in planning the development of a rapid transit system.

Wanted Love, Found Dead

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The pajama-clad body of 19 year-old Carol Villoria was found on a landing near her apartment Friday by a neighbor, police reported.

Officers said the girl died from an apparent overdose of narcotics.

Friends of the girl told police she had been quarreling with a boyfriend in recent weeks, and officers found a note in her apartment which said: "May God have mercy on me. Nobody loves me and that's all I wanted. No one could or would."

Reagan Assures Kuchel Again He'll Stay Neutral

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Republican U.S. Sen. Thomas I. Kuchel, campaigning for reelection, heard Gov. Reagan reaffirm Friday that he will remain neutral in California's GOP senate primary election.

The 57-year-old Kuchel drove to Sacramento a day after he announced he will seek a fourth term, and delivered a message aimed at the Sacramento Valley — a big farming area dependent on vast federal flood control and irrigation projects.

HE TOLD A NEWS conference at the Capitol that he won authorization of between $1.5 billion and $2 billion worth of federal water projects for California in recent years, and saw about $1 billion appropriated toward their construction.

meeting that he would remain neutral if Dr. Max Rafferty, the superintendent of public instruction backed by many GOP conservatives, enters the June primary. Rafferty is likely to announce his candidacy on Washington's Birthday.

Kuchel, said Reagan repeated that he would be "neutral and I believe him."

DRINK-DRIVE BILLS COVER LIFE, DEATH

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman F. James Bear, D-San Diego, Friday introduced a series of bills designed to crack down harder on drunken drivers.

One bill would require a minimum jail sentence of at least five days for any person convicted of drunken driving and causing an accident with more than $100 in damage or injuries.

A second measure would require blood alcohol tests of all persons killed in automobile accidents to determine if they were under the influence of alcohol.

Peace Economy Study Group Bill Introduced

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Assemblyman John L. Burton, D-San Francisco, introduced legislation Friday to establish a state commission to prepare California for a peaceful economy.

"If we ever reach a peaceful solution to the problems in Southeast Asia, it could create havoc in California's economy since our industries are so geared to federal defense contracts," Burton told a news conference.

Brother Booked in Boy Death

Homicide detectives Friday were investigating the fatal shooting of a 15-year-old Wilmington youth, who police say was killed by his older teen-age brother.

Manuel Chavira, of 831 N. Watson St., was killed Thursday night at the home of his brother, Paul, 19, of 1-25 E. L St., police said.

Chavira, who said the shooting was accidental, was booked on suspicion of murder.

The suspect was jailed after he and his wife, Sheila, told conflicting stories of the death, detectives said.

Officers said they recovered the .32-caliber revolver with which young Chavira was shot in the chest.

Cal-Vet Loan Bill

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Sen. George E. Danielson, D-Los Angeles, Friday proposed legislation increasing the maximum limit of a Cal Vet home loan from $15,000 to $20,000. The increase is dependent on voter approval of a Veterans Bond Act.

Kuchel replied that he had pushed through the $1 billion San Luis project, to help bring water from Northern California to the south; the $500 million Auburn Dam Folsom South project in the Sacramento Valley and Sierra foothills; the $100 million project to bring water from San Luis reservoir to Santa Clara, San Benito and Monterey counties and a new nuclear power plant and desalinization project off the coast of Orange County.

Reagan Launches Drive to Hire 400,000 in State

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Reagan launched a new program Friday to hire young people—particularly in poverty areas—for summer work.

Reagan said the state "faces a major problem this summer because there are more than 400,000 young adults, 16 through 21 years of age, who will be looking for work."

"Many of these young people come from poverty areas of the state," he added.

Reagan called on private industry and all levels of government in the state to work together to find jobs for the young men and women. Reagan said he would appoint a "blue-ribbon" committee from private enterprise to implement the job-campaign effort.

Spencer Williams, Reagan's health and welfare chief, said the governor hopes to place as many as 2,500 young people in temporary state jobs during the summer.

White House Rips 'Hip Shooter' McCarthy

By AL EISELE
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — The White House Friday accused Sen. Eugene McCarthy of shooting from the hip by declaring that the use of tactical nuclear weapons has been requested.

Presidential Press Secretary George Christian branded as false McCarthy's assertion in Boston Thursday that a request already has been made for such weapons and that he expects the request to be renewed. McCarthy denied he made such a flat assertion.

"I think all of you understand that decisions of this nature rest with the President," Christian told newsmen at a White House briefing. "The President has considered no decision of this nature."

THEN CHRISTIAN said, "I might add irresponsible discussion or speculation (on this subject) are a disservice to the country. Sen. McCarthy's statement is false and also unfair to the armed forces." A reporter, noting that McCarthy did not say who made the request, asked Christian why he considered the statement unfair to the armed forces, but Christian refused to answer the question.

"I don't intend to say anything more about the statement," Christian replied.

It had been reported earlier, but not confirmed, that the Joint Chiefs of Staff had asked Johnson for permission to use tactical nuclear weapons in defense of the embattled outpost of Khe Sanh should they be necessary. News reports said such weapons are being stockpiled in Vietnam and that four nuclear scientists have been sent there. High U.S. military officials termed the report "ridiculous." They noted that the last thing the United States would do is stockpile nuclear weapons in an unstable environment like Vietnam. The Defense Department said in a statement Friday that four scientists are in Vietnam to help in the appraisal of new weapons "which have no relationship whatsoever to nuclear systems of any kind."

If the United States ever wanted to use atomic weapons, these officials said, the devices could be brought in with little trouble or delay.

MCCARTHY, reached in Miami where he was giving a speech and meeting with Florida supporters Friday in this campaign for the 1968 Democratic presidential nomination, denied that he had volunteered any flat statement about the use of atomic weapons. He had only answered a reporter's question at a brief news conference about whether he had heard such a rumor.

McCarthy, a foe of Johnson's Vietnam war policies, said his reply was, according to the best of his memory: "It wouldn't surprise me if some generals had been asking for nuclear weapons."

The full text of McCarthy's answer, according to a tape made by a reporter in Boston, shows that his answer was somewhat longer, however.

According to the tape, McCarthy said: "Well, I expect there will be a demand for the use of nuclear weapons by someone. As a matter of fact, there have been some demands for their use already. I hesitate to say that I hope it would not be seriously entertained by the administration."

The chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee sent Rusk a letter in which he said his "simple inquiry" arose from a closed committee discussion of a report that a specialist on such weapons had gone to South Vietnam last weekend.

FULBRIGHT's committee asked for no formal investigation into the weapons question, feeling it is outside its jurisdiction. But the committee staff did inquire of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee and was told there was no substance to the report, an aide said.

Rep. Craig Hosmer, Calif., ranking Republican House member of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee, said he knew of no request by the military to use tactical nuclear weapons.

Hosmer, who recently said the United States should consider using such weapons in the event war breaks out in Korea, told a reporter that in his opinion Khe Sanh did not lend itself to the employment of tactical nuclear weapons.

Nixon, Romney Speak Out Against Further Escalation of Vietnam War

By United Press International

Republican presidential contenders Richard M. Nixon and George Romney both spoke out Friday against further escalation of the Vietnam war.

Romney sought primary election votes in icy Wisconsin while Nixon continued private strategy sessions in Denver to gain support in the West.

Romney told audiences in Kenosha and Racine that "there has got to be an alternative to continued military escalation."

"If we continue down this road," he said, "it leads right to World War III."

The Michigan governor said the Johnson administration "just doesn't tell us the truth" about Vietnam.

Nixon, at a news conference, said he would not accuse the administration of lying. "I do believe there has been a tendency to overplay the good news from Vietnam and to underplay some of the hard facts that may not be so rosy," he said.

Nixon said peace was possible in Vietnam "only through keeping on the military pressure, not escalation."

In Miami, Fla., Sen. Eugene S. McCarthy, D-Minn., said Secretary of State Dean Rusk had exaggerated Communist China's international threat. He said China was more interested in its own domestic problems than in military aggression.

S. Viet Aide Raps Bobby

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The South Vietnamese U.N. observer charged Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., Friday with making "unfair and unfounded criticism" against the people and government of that country.

The charge was contained in a statement issued by the office of Ambassador Nguyen Huu-Chi, head of South Vietnam's observer mission to the United Nations.

2 Announce Intent to Refuse Induction

BOSTON (UPI) — The New England Resistance, an antiwar, antidraft organization based here, said Friday two of its members will refuse military induction Monday.

The group identified the two as John Pennington, a native of Galveston, Tex., and Michael Mickelsen, a Dartmouth College graduate.

bassador Nguyen Huu-Chi, head of South Vietnam's observer mission to the United Nations.

The statement expressed regret that Kennedy had chosen to voice criticism "against the people and government of South Vietnam, which are sweating blood and tears to rehabilitate thousands of civilians, victims of attacks of the Viet Cong terrorists."

Kennedy said in a speech in Chicago Thursday that the U.S. military effort to end the war "is like sending a lion to end an epidemic of jungle rot." A source close to Kennedy said the senator's criticism did not signal the start of a systematic assault on President Johnson's war strategy.

"The failure of North Vietnam and of Viet Cong to incite the population to uprising has amply answered the senator's charge that the Vietnamese people do not have a clear sense of identification with their own government," the statement from the observer's office said.

"The remarks by the senator would be more constructive in this juncture if he had refrained from making easy criticism without giving evidence for his charges."

State's Winemakers Boast Record Year

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Shipments of California 8 shipments of California wine reached a record 148.9 million gallons last year, the Wine Institute reports.

The institute said 1967 was the second consecutive record year, and the third in the past four. Last year's shipments represented a 2.9 per cent gain over 1966.

Bombing of N. Viet Resumed

In other ground action, a South Vietnamese military spokesman said U.S. Marines had scored fresh gains in the northern city of Hue as the battle for the old imperial capital entered its 12th day. He said small groups of the enemy were retreating toward three small towns to the south.

The spokesman said the Leathernecks had taken control of Hue's railroad station, soccer stadium and the Phu Cam administrative complex in the city. But there was no late word from the city's old walled Citadel, where at last reports enemy remnants still held out against government troops.

SAIGON AND HUE were the only major cities where street fighting from the Communist assaults on 35 South Vietnamese municipalities still persisted.

U.S. infantrymen landed from helicopters and deployed around the Saigon race track Friday, taking up positions in the grandstands and challenging a Viet Cong battalion terrorizing the city's Chinese district.

Some captured Viet Cong were boys of 13 and 14.

At Pleiku in the central highlands, the Communists fired 30 mortar rounds into the U.S. Army's Camp Holloway. U.S. spokesmen said four soldiers were killed and 36 wounded.

In the strike on Cat Bi, Navy A6 Intruder pilots said strings of 1,000-pound bombs cut across the intersection of runways. But heavy overcast and darkness prevented further damage assessment.

THE FIELD IS BIG enough to handle Communist MIG interceptors but there have been no reports of the fighters operating from it in recent months. U.S. spokesmen said they want to keep the field inoperative.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Sunday in a broadcast interview, "We have exercised some restraint in our bombing in North Vietnam" while diplomatic efforts were under way to determine if Hanoi would taper off militarily if the U.S. stopped bombing.

But Rusk indicated the diplomatic probing had come to an end because of the recent Red offensive against South Vietnamese cities and towns.

The A6 all-weather Intruders made several other strikes farther out from Haiphong. All were made using pinpoint radar-bombing techniques.

U.S. Air Force F4 Phantom fighter-bombers pounded the Kep MIG airfield, 38 miles northeast of Hanoi, and an army barracks 65 miles northwest of the capital city.

Court Martial Finds Viet Protester Guilty

Army Pvt. Dennis J. Adelsberger, 23, who has refused to wear his uniform in protest of the Vietnam war, was found guilty of willful disobedience by a special court-martial Friday night.

The Army said Adelsberger was also found guilty of being absent without leave and as a result of the charges was sentenced to four months confinement at hard labor, was ordered to forfeit $68 a month four months and was reduced to the lowest grade.

'CANT. HALT' CONG THEFT

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high-ranking official conceded Friday that some America commodities sent to Vietnam are being diverted into Communist-held areas—and he said he sees no way to halt this completely.

It would be an "impossibly expensive proposition" to prevent all diversions to the Viet Cong, and there is no effective way to do it, said Rutherford Poats, deputy director of the Agency for International Development.

GEN. LEWIS HERSHEY Shrugs Off Critics

Hershey Hints Big Call Up

The protesters lined up along one side of the long hallway and state employees stood along the opposite wall. They stared at each other while tourists looked with puzzlement at both groups.

Several demonstrators sought entrance to the governor's office, but were blocked by state police. They carried placards saying: "Reagan and Hershey Two of a Kind" and "Old Men Start War, Young Men Die."

Hershey declined to meet with the group, composed mostly of students from Sacramento State College and the University of California's campus at nearby Davis.

Reagan took the occasion to reply to criticism by Rep. B. F. Sisk, D-Calif., who accused the governor of making political appointments to local draft boards.

The governor said a national directive urges states to name women and persons from minority groups to the boards. He said he was following this policy.

"If that constitutes a political maneuver, they'll have to take it up with Washington," Reagan said.

Hershey commended the governor and the state's Selective Service organization. He said both were doing "a fine job out here."

The director reiterated his tough stand against adult opponents to the draft, including Dr. Benjamin Spock, recently indicted on a conspiracy charge.

"I have more desire to get hold of these older people," he said. "I have more sympathy with the kids."

The general brushed aside his congressional critics, some of whom have urged him to retire. He dismissed rumors that he might be fired.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House subcommittee on education Friday issued a bipartisan plea to President Johnson to move quickly in determining which college graduate students will continue to receive military draft deferments.

Cannon-Fire, MIGs Halted Pueblo

By BOB HORTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials reported Friday night that numerous shots were fired across the USS Pueblo's bow before she was halted and boarded by North Koreans.

The officials said the shots were fired across the Comdr. Lloyd M. Bucher maneuvered the lightly armed Pueblo in evasive action, and destroyed some of its secret intelligence-gathering equipment before it was seized.

THE U.S. officials said that according to the account of the action as now reconstructed from various types of intelligence, there were eight MIG jet fighters over the Pueblo at the time it was seized, although only two of which were seen by the crew.

Another 75 North Korean aircraft were on alert at nearby Wonsan, it was stated.

This information, the source of which was not given, was at variance with previous official accounts of the Jan. 23 seizure of the U.S. intelligence-gathering ship.

The Pueblo and 82

surviving members of her 83 man crew now are being held by the North Koreans, who charge the vessel was captured while intruding into North Korea's territorial waters.

GOVERNMENT officials previously had said there was no specific reference to any gunfire in messages from the Pueblo during the encounter.

Bucher spoke of four members of his crew being injured or wounded, but there has been no indication of whether they were the victims of hostile action or of onboard efforts to blow up some of the Pueblo's secret equipment.

One member of the crew later died in North Korea. It was disclosed also Friday night that a continuing search of records has yielded a Jan. 20 radio message from the Pueblo showing it was then in international waters.

MAPS, CALLS TO VIETNAM Johnson Turns the White House into Command Post for Khe Sanh

By MAX FRANKEL
N.Y. Times Service
WASHINGTON — The ultimate command post for the developing battle at Khe Sanh is really a mansion on Pennsylvania Avenue here — the office and residence of the commander in chief, Lyndon B. Johnson.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON
Keeps Close Watch

Is this battle really necessary? What do we do if we lost that help? Who guards those roads, especially if the weather grounds our planes? Are you sure you can hold that bridge?

ALMOST daily these and other tense and urgent questions flow from the pen of the President, probing policy, tactics, preparations, morale. The response they evoke adds up to the largest volume of messages and reports ever gathered by the White House for a tactical engagement in the war. They are jammed into Johnson's "night reading" packet and fed into the basement situation room, in the west wing of the White House, where maps and charts are ready for the President's survey of battle at any moment.

AS HE WAITS for the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces to "drop the other shoe" by moving on Khe Sanh — if indeed they mean to drop it — Johnson embodies the concern and tension of many officials, legislators and observers in Washington.

Outwardly calm and confident and holding to his routine, including greeting visiting Boy Scouts and foreign students, the President has nonetheless left the impression that he cannot take his mind off the war for long.

The enemy's delay — for reasons of weather, tactics or psychology — has heightened the tension, and Johnson's concern, aides report, take the form of even more intensive checks and double checks.

The President can, if he wishes, speak directly by telephone with Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, and even with some of his subordinates closer to the battle area. But that is nothing new and not many people at the White House know how often Johnson talks to the front directly. Nor has it been unusual, since World War II, for presidents to involve themselves even more deeply in the wartime maneuvers or cold-war feints of their armies and navies.

But Johnson has injected a novel element into modern warfare.

IT TOOK weeks for George Washington to hear about some of his administration's major battles, such as Gen. Anthony Wayne's last big Indian battle at Fallen Timbers in 1794. It was not until he had defeated the British in New Orleans in 1815 that Gen. Andrew Jackson learned that a peace had been signed before the battle began.

When Westmoreland moves a unit from one hill to another at Khe Sanh, however, the chances are that he will quickly hear his commander in chief asking sympathetically but firmly — why?

By his own testimony, Johnson's purpose is not to meddle but to make certain that he detects every significant disagreement among his advisers in time to reach their best judgment.

After determining the situation in the field, Johnson keeps going back to the top command at the Pentagon. He has obtained a written endorsement from each member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff of the order of battle prepared for Khe Sanh.

HE HAS obtained — and advertised — assurances that the generals have been furnished with all the manpower and equipment they think they need to beat back the massed force of North Vietnamese troops, believed to number 40,000.

Johnson says he is satisfied that the defending force of 40,000 American troops will give a good account of themselves.

However, he has not ceased to ask from time to time, as the enemy deploys, whether Khe Sanh remains the best or necessary point of defense, and to seek the advice of experienced but retired strategists, such as Generals Maxwell D. Taylor and Matthew B. Ridgway.

Most difficult of all is the question of how the current tempo of the war will affect Johnson's political standing at home. He is known to believe that people generally rally around a president in time of stress and wish him well, but he does not know how great a battlefield success will be needed to vindicate his management of the war.

Whatever the people's judgment, the last two weeks have made it abundantly clear that he is, indeed, managing it.

Marines at Khe Sanh Wait; Casualties Soar

KHE SANH, Vietnam (AP) — Casualties have exceeded 10 per cent of their 5,000-man force but U.S. Marines at this combat base are for the most part in high spirits and spoiling for a fight.

A comparatively small number of men have broken down emotionally under the North Vietnamese artillery, rockets and mortar barrages which have hammered this base. These men have been evacuated as combat fatigue cases.

A German shepherd scout dog named Lance, also a combat fatigue case, got caught in an artillery barrage while waiting to be evacuated and just lay down on the edge of an aircraft parking area with his head between his paws.

The question of morale is high on the list of concern of senior Marines here. The battle for Khe Sanh is barely under way and is not expected to end until many Marines and North Vietnamese regulars have been bloodied in what may shape up as the war's biggest single battle.

Col. David E. Lownds, 47, of Holyoke, Mass., the Marine commander here, says reports from his battalion and unit commanders show morale is as yet undented. Interviews with Marine infantrymen generally bear this out.

If the Marines do have a morale problem, it is probably that the Leathernecks, trained as shock troops, are forced to sit in sandbagged bunkers and wait for enemy initiative rather than launching attacks of their own.

Officers and veteran sergeants have a single expression for this frustration — it "bugs" their men.

6,000 Flee via Khe Sanh as U.S. Reverses Ruling

SAIGON (AP) — Their initial orders reversed, U.S. Marines are pitching in to speed to safety the 5,000 or 6,000 refugees they turned away from their Khe Sanh combat base after the fall of the Lang Vei Special Forces camp Wednesday.

Vietnamese and Laotians, civilians and soldiers, were finally admitted Friday to the Leatherneck stronghold on a red clay bluff east of Lang Vei and four-engine C-130 Hercules transports started flying them to Da Nang for distribution to refugee centers.

U.S. officials hoped to complete the evacuation Saturday.

The human flood had lapped at the perimeter wire barricades Thursday, a day on which North Vietnamese troops heavily shelled the base and temporarily penetrated a hilltop outpost in fighting in which 124 of the enemy and 21 of the Marines were reported killed.

Suspicion that Viet Cong had infiltrated the crowd to stage an attack from within contributed to the decision to bar all from the base and to disarm the soldiers among them.

The soldiers were Vietnamese irregulars and royal Laotian infantrymen.

BOOK REVIEWS

Harold Macmillan on WWII

THE BLAST OF WAR, 1939-1945. By Harold Macmillan. Harper & Row, $11.95.

This book firmly establishes Macmillan as a writer and historian of the Churchill class and is a remarkable account of how World War II was fought on the political front in London, North Africa, Italy, France and Greece.

Macmillan was in the center of great events and on intimate terms with the personalities who forged the Allied victory... Churchill, Roosevelt, De Gaulle, Alexander, Tito and Eisenhower.

Their greatness and foibles are recorded with honesty and wit, while the momentous conflicts that surrounded them are enthrallingly observed. Among Macmillan's surprising revelations is his unprecedented account of the conflicts of personalities and politics in the crucial Mediterranean area, where the Allied strategy for reconquering Europe was hammered out and where the military operations started.

AS POLITICAL minister in the Mediterranean, functioning as Churchill's deputy, he was first deeply involved in the hectic, and sometimes hilarious, events at Casablanca, when Churchill and Roosevelt strove to make their countries effective allies.

Macmillan pays tribute to the great Allied war effort but is forthrightly critical of many of Roosevelt's policies, particularly those based on American suspicion of British "imperialism." He also deplores American policy toward De Gaulle and is still convinced that if the Allies had accepted Alexander's proposal to pursue the Italian campaign into the Balkans in the summer of 1944 the course of postwar European history would have been decisively for the better.

MACMILLAN was one of the early members of the Churchill team. His accounts of the Chamberlain era and the dismal early phases of World War II are most enlightening. Macmillan, like Anthony Eden, was on the winning team and each became prime ministers, though not of the stature of their mentor-hero.

"The Blast of War" is history, and is especially well written. It contains, in fact, details Churchill could not or did not include in his six-volume "The Second World War." Likewise, it is historically important to have a candid account from another great statesman of the "old man" in action. — Bill Shelton PASSAGE TO THE GOLDEN GATE. A History of the Chinese in America to 1910. By Daniel Chu and Samuel Chu. Doubleday Zenith Books, $1.95.

The Gold Rush drew Chinese by the thousands; the mines and the railroads under construction found them a source of the most exploitable labor. They came to make fortunes and go back to China as wealthy men; far more of them stayed than left, in the face of violence (not excluding murder), harsh immigration laws and every kind of injustice. The Chus give a fascinating account of the Chinese in the heyday of their immigration to America.

ca. FILLE DE JOIE. The Book of Courtesans, Sporting Girls, Ladies of the Evening, Madams, a Few Occasionals and Some Royal Favorites. Grove Press, $15.

Back in the second century the Roman Lucian wrote of "The Education of a Courtesan," and not very long ago Polly Adler detailed the life and thoughts of a New York madam. They are both represented in these lively lives of the ladies of leisure. In between the second and the 20th centuries the ways of the daughters of joy were recounted in the Hindu Kama Sutra, by the Chinese Li Yu, by India's Kshemendra, who chronicled "The Rise and Fall of a Harlot," and by various other hands, such as Nell Kimball in her account of brothel life in 19th century New Orleans and a host of others who appear in this book.

Not to mention John Cleland of "Fanny Hill" fame, who writes of "The Mysteries of Venus," and such knowledgeable Frenchmen as De Sade and Pierre Louys. There are over 350 illustrations, 17 of them color plates, including art masterpieces and broadsheets.

Family Tapes Terror of Saigon

By DAVID SHAW

Tarry J. Robert sat on the living room floor of his temporary Saigon home last week, and — with his wife and two children providing occasional observations — calmly narrated into a tape recorder the Viet Cong terrorist raids that shattered South Vietnam . . . and came within a few feet of his front door.

Robert, 37, his wife, Marlene, 35, and their children, Mark, 18, and Kristain, 5, all formerly of Long Beach, live in a French villa near the center of Saigon, midway between the besieged American embassy and the Vietnamese Presidential Palace.

Their villa, surrounded by barbed wire and a 10-foot-high concrete fence, has foot-thick concrete walls and heavily shuttered windows. But, the Robert family—two blocks from the embassy and the palace, across the street from the South Korean Embassy, next door to other government buildings under attack—huddled in their home for three days and three nights during the raids, listening to the sounds of the war outside, afraid they might be next.

Robert carried the tape recorder with him at all times, describing the raids, then mailing the tapes to his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Cheely, of 6390 Cerritos Ave.

On the tapes, Robert's voice is often drowned out by exploding grenades and the muffled roar of gunfire. Jets scream by, prop-driven bombers rumble overhead, helicopters whirl back and forth.

Robert's voice—unworried, even joking at first—becomes more and more frightened. His wife, Marlene—at first concerned only that her young daughter is not too upset to sleep—says at the end of the last tape, in a fearful, trembling voice, "We're still fine . . . we're still scared . . . then in a plaintive, almost anguished whisper—"We're still here."

Robert went to Vietnam alone last March when his company, Quinton Engineers Ltd. of Los Angeles, received a contract for construction work from the U.S. Agency for International Development.

An architectural engineer, he had previously landscaped the Long Beach Arena, the City Water and Power building and several local golf courses.

Robert and his wife went to Poly High School together and were both active in Long Beach social life. After he had been in Vietnam six months, she got lonely and—with their children—decided to join him in Saigon.

The family was never in danger until last week.

Then—early the morning of Jan. 31, when Mr. and Mrs. Robert returned from a party ("still half-hung over," she says)—the Viet Cong struck.

They captured the American Embassy for six hours, lobbed grenades and mortar shells into the town and raced through the streets, firing at will.

"They didn't accomplish anything," Robert says on the tape. "It was a psychological move. They were hoping to capture something that would give them prestige. It was a last-ditch move before they agree to negotiate peace."

That was Robert the first hours of the raids—calm, analytical, confident.

"I don't know what the news reports back home will say," he added, "but don't worry. It'll sound 10 times worse than it really is."

Then, the terrorism increased.

The Roberts could actually hear bullets whizzing by the villa. They lay on the floor, their lights out, while American and South Vietnamese troops raced through the streets, looking for the Communists.

Their young daughter, Kristain, became so frightened, Mrs. Robert had to give her tranquilizers so she could sleep.

Finally, there was a lull in the fighting. Robert went up to the roof—tape recorder still in hand—and watched the bombers as they droned overhead.

"Boy, look at those bombs," he said. "Someone's going to get the hell knocked out of them."

Robert's son, Mark, went outside with a friend to survey the damage. He came back visibly shaken—"he saw dismembered bodies wheeled off in carts. He even saw a head wrapped in a blood-soaked sheet sitting on its body," his father said.

Robert, meanwhile, had turned on the radio to hear periodic broadcasts advising U.S. workers to report to their jobs or stay home.

"That wonderful Armed Forces Radio," he said.

Then—after a brief visit next door as honored Tet (New Year's) guests of a Vietnamese family—the terrorism resumed.

"We're still OK," Robert whispered into the tape recorder.

His wife—who, during the lull had reminded her mother to send her another brassiere—said, "I'm taking the first plane out of here."

The Salt of Seas Runs in the Veins of Orval J. Lantz

By ART VINSEL

Orval James Lantz Jr. will never man a battle station, or stand dogwatch in the Tonkin Gulf, but the proud blood of sailors runs in his veins.

He is an incurable hemophiliac.

He lives a necessarily sheltered life at 23749 Gulf Ave., Carson — and at Widney High School for handicapped youths — because even a slight cut, blow or strain could prove fatal.

"Mostly, I get the bad stuff during the cold season," Orval—they call him Junior—said "maybe 50, 60 times a year I go to Orthopedic Hospital for transfusions."

THE HEREDITARY ailment causes him to bleed internally and his blood supply must be replenished as drugs control the hemorrhaging.

The Hemophilia Foundation of Southern California pays processing costs for the blood needed to supplement young Lantz' own faulty body chemistry, which has no clotting agent.

But, a steady supply of donors is needed and the boy's long-ago baby-sitter, Mrs. Gerry Rodriguez, keeps it moving.

"She's the instigator," Meredith Carson, 19, a shipfitter from Emporia, Kans., who initiated his own drive among men of the destroyer USS Isbell, said.

Gerry keeps word of the boy's need circulating among the Navy station's changing personnel, and donors from other ships and the base petroleum school have donated numerous quarts of A positive blood.

"There's nothing to it," Carson said.

Young Lantz' father — retired as a civilian shipfitter after four heart attacks — or his mother, Lois, drives a carload of donors to a Los Angeles laboratory each week.

Following the last blood trip, sailors, a Marine and neighbors gathered for a combination farewell and birthday party, since Junior will be 15 Thursday.

Toasts were drunk to everyone, from individual donors to Capt. G. D. Walker, skipper of the Isbell, which leaves soon for Southeast Asia.

They will be going in "harm's way" — as famed Navy Capt. John Paul Jones once said, while preparing for battle.

Orval James Lantz Jr., the friend they leave behind, is never really out of it.

Computer to Baby-Sit With Premature Tots

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

The premature-baby nursery of the future will contain a computer which will type out rapid-fire instructions when monitoring equipment detects dangerous physiological changes in an infant.

This was reported Friday at a symposium on newborn babies, held at Memorial Hospital of Long Beach under the sponsorship of the Long Beach Pediatric Society and the Long Beach Chapter of the American Academy of General Practice.

Dr. Joan E. Hodgman, director of the newborn service at Los Angeles County General Hospital, said her hospital is planning such a facility.

Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children is, even now, setting up a nursery with a computer, she disclosed.

Dr. Hodgman, speaking before an audience of 280 registered nurses and physicians, said the death rate among premature babies will be reduced substantially when medical science applies techniques now used with adult patients.

Specifically needed for the premature baby is the intensive-care-unit concept. This calls for constant monitoring of physiological responses, and immediate action when something goes wrong.

SECONDLY, SHE said, babies must not be treated as if they were tiny adults.

For example, a baby does best in an incubator temperature of 92 to 94 degrees Fahrenheit—far too hot for an adult. But at this temperature, she said, baby's oxygen requirements are the lowest. Any hotter or cooler and oxygen requirements go up, she said.

"The premature infant's major problem is breathing," Dr. Hodgman noted.

"Just keeping an incubator at the right temperature can reduce mortality," she added.

Dr. Hodgman said it's also important that not all prematures be treated alike.

There are two major types of premature babies, she said, and each type has different troubles.

ONE TYPE IS TRUE prematurity—the immature child. The other is the child of low birth weight—the undergrown, malnourished baby which has had slow intrauterine growth.

"Differentiation of these two classes of infant can improve our understanding of the problem of the premature baby," she said.

Another speaker, Dr. Richard T. Smith, professor of pathology and pediatrics at University of Florida, Gainesville, said that the antibiotic kanamycin, along with penicillin, is the treatment of choice for dangerous infections of the newborn.

Even so, he said, doctors have been unable to reduce the death rate of overwhelming bacterial infection to less than 40 per cent.

MRS. GENE BAGLEY, R. N., chief nurse of the maternity and newborn section of Los Angeles County General Hospital, recommended that nurseries for full-term babies contain no more than eight bassinets, and that premature nurseries be restricted to six, preferably four, spaces.

Constant observation is needed, she said.

"In the 1940s we thought that penicillin would solve all our problems," she remarked. "It hasn't. We seem to be getting new bugs or new strains of old bugs."

Dr. Joseph W. St. Geme Jr., chief of pediatrics at Harbor General Hospital, said that a vaccine to protect against German measles probably will be available before the next epidemic occurs.

As of now, German measles remains the most serious infection of pregnancy—an infection that can lead to babies with serious defects.

Talk About Floating on Sea of Beer

Beer makes some people sleepy.

Michael P. Altman is one of them.

After a "couple of beers", Altman said he became drowsy, so he found a place to nap.

He woke up about noon Friday, only to discover he was 25 miles at sea on a ship bound for Australia.

The 24-year-old North Hollywood man told Department of Immigration officials: "I like ships, so I went aboard this one. I wandered into a smoking room, sat down, and guess I fell asleep."

The unintentional stowaway immediately reported himself to the captain of the MV Belnor, officials said, and was transferred to a water taxi for the return trip to shore.

"Since he wasn't an alien, and the Kerr Steamship Co. didn't seek prosecution, we took him to his car, warned him to be more careful about naps, and released him," the immigration officer said.

of these laws — and the viewpoints of judges, police and narcotics offenders — in a special report appearing Sunday in the Independent Press-Telegram.

HAILED 'A MILESTONE'

Court Building Dedicated

Western Orange County's new $1.1-million Municipal Courts building was hailed by State Sen. James E. Whetmore Friday as "a milestone" in the county's history.

Speaking at dedication ceremonies for the new courthouse in Westminster Civic Center, the Fullerton Republican commented that the Legislature is now considering proposals by which Gov. Reagan would take politics out of appointment of judges.

U.S. Marines posted colors in one of six courtrooms to signal the dedication presided over by Municipal Judge Celia Baker formally opened the West Orange County Judicial District as successor to a leased courthouse operated for the last 15 years in Huntington Beach.

The new three-story structure has space for another six courtrooms and also houses in its 48,676 square feet quarters for marshal, district attorney, public defender and juries.

On adjacent acreage Westminster is constructing a city hall, police building and library as other first phases of the Civic Center project that will eventually cost $4.3 million.

Jade Plant for Patio

By JOE LITTLEFIELD
Garden Consultant

Look no further if you are seeking a low-maintenance container plant for the sunny porch or patio. Go to your nursery and purchase Crassula arborescens, "Jade plant." This fleshy, erect shrub, with nearly round, somewhat flat but fleshy lime-green or darker green leaves and light pink clusters of flowers in winter, has a sleek, well-groomed look nearly the year 'round. We don't know of any garden pests that like this plant.

In the ground it eventually grows five feet and large, but in the container it stays dwarf-like. Plant it as you would any other container plant by mixing two parts of a planter mix and three parts of garden soil. Keep the soil slightly moist till the roots become established. Thereafter, water it only as it really thirsts for a drink. Refill the container two or three times after each time the water has gradually disappeared into the soil. Watering thusly eliminates frequent waterings. Feed it lightly periodically.

The worst sin a gardener can commit at planting time is to set his plants too deep, in containers and particularly in the ground. This means the top of the root ball is covered too deeply.

The excess soil smothers the plant trunk that should be exposed to light, air and dryness. Lack of air plus possible dampness of the soil slowly causes the bark tissue to break down. The bark eventually dies, shuts off life-giving sap and the plant dies.

That is why it is so important for the gardener to be sure the soil is thoroughly firmed under and around the root ball, and especially sure the top of the root ball is level with the ground.

Another unintentionally

JADE PLANT . . . Low Maintenance, High Color

poor method of planting, even though the gardener carefully sets the root ball level with the surrounding soil, is to instinctively set the plant in a saucer like depression. He reasons that the water thusly is confined around the plant and therefore is sure to give sufficient moisture for the roots. Unfortunately, the soil gradually washes in around the plant and finally buries the trunk too deep.

After proper planting, build a ring of soil several inches higher than the ground level. The ring confines the water around the plant. A month or so later remove the ring and cultivate a circular furrow several inches deep to confine the water. This type of watering is beneficial because it allows the soil to soak equally as far away from the furrow as it does up to the plant trunk, thereby encouraging the roots to grow out faster and further.

Gardeners should realize there are two good perennial vegetables, also a perennial fruit plant, that still may be available in root form to plant in a garden set aside for food crops.

Asparagus is one that lasts many years, and the roots multiply. One year we priced asparagus that first appeared at the vegetable stands and cost 59 cents a pound. The price dropped considerably as more appeared on the market.

The other perennial veg-

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Q. Will Dowpon herbicide spray kill winter annual bluegrass in my dichondra lawn? T.G.R.

Q. Is there a safe weed killer to control grass—mostly devil grass—in a mixed dichondra lawn? Mrs. H.D.

A. Dowpon properly applied will kill bluegrass in dichondra. Apply in a fine mist only, NOT a heavy saturation spray. Repeat spraying as directed on container label. Enide is a grass and small broadleaf weed seed inhibitor (it sterilizes and kills the seeds before they sprout). Use a fertilizer containing this inhibitor plus another herbicide that controls oxalis. You MUST mow the lawn closely and regularly, beginning early in the spring.

Q. My 15-year-old hibiscus is leafless due to undetected gas leak for five months. Branches still seem alive. Can I help encourage new growth if it is not dead? Mrs. H.B.B.

A. Apply weekly applications of vitamin B-1 when giving the plant water, five or six weeks in a row. It isn't a fertilizer, but it might stimulate root growth.

Q. We're moving to a new home in Cerritos, and have four questions: (1) What's the best lawn for that area? (2) Can a 3-year-old tree azalea be moved successfully? (3) How long before a year-old jacaranda tree seedling will bloom? (4) Will clematis vines and tree peonies thrive and bloom in that area? D.B.

A. (1) Use a blend of grasses that come in one seed box. (2) Yes. Be sure sphagnum peat moss is moist and thoroughly firmed when planting. (3) Possibly four or five years after it is planted out. (4) Plant clematis in lots of sun, away from winds. Plant tree peonies in mostly shade in a soil mixture similar to what they previously grew in. Feed peonies same plant food as for other shade plants. Water deeply.

Why He Enjoys His Long Beach Parish

By LES RODNEY

It's 10 months since Rev. Samuel Leslie Hall came to St. Luke's Episcopal Church from Whittier. Without knocking the latter, he finds things more interesting in the historic downtown Long Beach church.

"It was a young suburban-type parish at Whittier," he said in a chat this week, "with lots of younger families and children. Typical of a new housing area."

"At St. Luke's, we have a more fully rounded cross-section of the population, in ages, backgrounds, occupations. I like it and enjoy it. I feel it is more in touch with the mainstream."

This difference also shows itself in a less transient feeling than in a suburban-type parish. Or, as Father Hall put it in positive terms: "More stable elements."

"Oh," he quickly amplified, "not the stuffiness. What you have here is the vitality that comes from people who have lived in Long Beach, who are involved in the life of the parish, care about it, are interested in it."

The 39-year-old native San Franciscan and Mrs. Hall themselves got a quick start toward being woven into Long Beach life with three of their youngsters attending Longfellow School. The fourth is a bit young for classrooms.

AS PART of the worldwide Anglican communion, with roots deep in the Anglo-Saxon founding heritage of this country, the Episcopal Church's image has long been one of stability and even, in a sense, "aristocracy." Anglo-Saxons still probably constitute its largest single ethnic strain, Father Hall supposes, though this is no longer as evident as it once was. To many Episcopalians, a British connection of any sort has become remote. But the church has at least its share of Americans with a special little feeling for England, including Father Hall, who spent a year studying there between assignments.

"The positive thing you do see about this old-line Episcopal tradition here," he observed, "is the fact of a good many leadership-type people. This is probably one reason the church continues to maintain its relatively large impact on American life."

A highlight of the rector's first year here was dedication of the $250,000 parish hall on the corner of Seventh and Atlantic, marking completion of St. Luke's methodical expansion and reconstruction program.

"EVERYBODY is happy about it," Father Hall said. "The new hall keeps the feeling of the church's background and traditions and yet is extremely pleasant and utilitarian."

"There is a trend away from putting big money into church buildings," he added, "but our facilities are in constant use. You can't fault that."

Not — it should be needless to say — that everything at St. Luke's is one big happy like-minded family.

Since members of the congregation live in the world, they bring with them the world's varying viewpoints on the state of the human condition, and Father Hall wouldn't have it any other way.

For openness, there's always Vietnam.

The Diocese of Los Angeles, covering seven counties and now the country's largest Episcopal diocese, is holding its 73rd convention, and today's final session will weigh a few controversial matters, including opposing resolutions on Vietnam from dove and hawk positions. Way-out hawks are in a small minority in the laity and not to be found among the leaders, but from there on opinions often sharply diverge. Anguish and emotion inevitably come into play.

"Every denomination has its divisions," the youthful-looking rector said quietly. "Certain polarizations are taking place. People with more liberal social outlooks on one hand, and those with more conservative views, sometimes feel more at home with others of a like view in another denomination than with their fellow church members."

"The thing we must learn to do is to keep in communication with one another as Christians... and most importantly, not to challenge the motivations of those with opposing views."

THE ANGLICAN tradition since the Reformation, Father Hall notes, has been one of calm elasticity, able to contain in one family widely varying outlooks. "I suppose it's English tolerance, muddling through and all that," he said with a little smile.

"It is just natural that different opinions are expressed, especially in times like these. The question is, how to deal with them, how to relate them to the Gospel and to the church."

"Proposition 14 taught us that you could never get one single political viewpoint emerging from a church. You wouldn't want that, anyhow. I wouldn't."

But with a Christian atmosphere, and dialogue keeping open lines of communication, he believes, "all can continue to focus on the common mission."

Some other topics touched on:

—Relations with other denominations in Long Beach "continue to deepen." The momentum is clearly toward better understanding all around.

REV. SAMUEL L. HALL
New Exhilaration in Christendom

—An imaginative cultural program within St. Luke's, which saw big turnouts for a splendid production last year of T. S. Eliot's "Murder in the Cathedral," and will shortly offer a play on Noah, enriches both the church and community. "Music, poetry, art are all part of man's spiritual awareness, serving to deepen his understanding of who he is and how he relates to God's universe."

—The church is "beginning to have an awareness" of the necessity for Christian concern on racial brotherhood and "I'm gratified by this."

—Increasingly women, who were once "busy doing church work," are now allowed "to do the work of the church," meaning participating on decision-making levels. "We're all just terribly slow on this," he said with a rueful shake of the head. "Almost 2,000 years..." (Women may now be elected to parish vestries in the Episcopal Church, and to diocesan and national conventions, because of the strength of the male priest tradition, it is highly unlikely that the question of woman pastors will come up for some time, as it has among some Protestants.)

OVERALL, Father Hall emphatically does not go along with the religious ism," he emphasized earnestly. "What makes it exciting is that we are involved in discovering what we are supposed to be doing. That's what is so challenging about this period."

He does not hold the view that the Vatican Councils started a renewal process for Christendom. "Most Christians were about to move into it, after a relatively static period. The Vatican Councils certainly expressed this dramatically, but it was on the way."

Ex-LB Pastor Writes 2 Books

Exposition Press has released two books, Billy Graham the Preacher and Pastoral Care of the Hospitalized Child, by a former Long Beach pastor, Rev. Dr. James E. Kilgore, now the minister of local church development for the American Baptist Churches of Northern California, and executive director for the Council of Churches of Central Contra Costa County. He formerly served as the assistant pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, 5722 Lime Avenue, Long Beach.

In Billy Graham, Dr. Kilgore explains the preaching style and content as well as the continuing effects of Graham's pulpit work. It is the first of its kind about Billy Graham, viewing him as a homiletician.

In Pastoral Care, Kilgore gives guidance for pastors, doctors, parents, nurses, and those who work with children. Chaplain Robert Gunter of Memorial Hospital says: "From James Kilgore's book, a pastor can learn to communicate 'whiteness' in the most emotionally loaded situation a family may face." The book is the result of Dr. Kilgore's clinical study at the hospital in the summer of 1965.

Episcopal Meet to Act on Hot Issues Today

The 73rd annual convention of the Episcopal Diocese of Los Angeles will conclude today with several highly controversial resolutions to be acted upon.

Diametrically opposing views on Vietnam will be submitted to delegates of the nation's largest diocese for approval.

One, by Ralph W. Jeffs, chairman of the Division of Christian Citizenship, says, in part: "Whereas... the Christian must recognize the dignity and rights of men over partisan causes and secular goals of any nation, and Whereas the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ is simply and humbly one of love and reconciliation, and Whereas the horrors of the war in Vietnam continue to dehumanize the participants as well as the victims and to divert this nation from its goal of advancing the welfare of man... Be It Resolved that the Diocese call for an immediate peaceful solution to the war in Vietnam and urge the Church to use its full moral influence to persuade our government to restore peace."

A second resolution on Vietnam, submitted by Benjamin G. Edwards III of San Diego, said in part: "Whereas as more than 100,000 American servicemen have been killed or wounded in combat in Vietnam, the third largest conflict in American history, and Whereas the President... has denied our military leaders the strategic use of our military forces toward winning and victory... Be It Resolved that the Diocese... petition the President to give our military leaders a free hand to fight the war to win."

Still another controversial resolution to be acted upon urges Congress to amend the Selective Service Act to provide legal recognition for those "who do not necessarily oppose all conceivable war but are conscientiously unable to participate in this particular war."

Fire Razes Famed Japanese Temple

KYOTO, Japan (UPI) — A bonfire started by four carpenters got out of control Friday and burned down the 100-year-old Genko-in Temple, a tourist attraction of this ancient cultural center of Japan.

The fire also destroyed the temple's study and tea-rooms, plus the living quarters of the next-door Kijoin Temple. No injuries were reported.

CONFIDENT LIVING

The Way to Shed a Lifelong Fear

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

"I can't keep my head above water. I feel swamped," a troubled man confided to a counselor at the religio-psychiatric clinic where he had come for help. He complained of being highly nervous and completely worn out. He could not sleep. He was hardly able to cope with his work and was increasingly irritable with associates.

Through several interviews the psychiatrist noticed a significant recurring thought-pattern. Repeatedly such phrases were used as, "Things seem to engulf me . . . It's like I were about to go under in a sea of difficulties . . . I have the impression of darkness closing over me . . ."

The doctor surmised that the disturbance could have developed from residue of fright experienced years before. He explored the man's history and found that, when this man was a small child, he and some older children capsized a boat on a lake. The others could swim; he could not. Water closed over his head; everything went black; he was choking . . . Then someone managed to pull him out. From that day on he would never go into the water. He was in mortal terror of it.

HE HAD long since dismissed this from his conscious mind — never thought of it anymore. But it had given rise to other fears now threatening to overwhelm him. So here he was on the verge of nervous exhaustion and imminent failure — when he should have all the vigor and efficiency of a man in his prime.

The doctor talked with him about faith. He had only intellectual belief. But he came to the point where he developed faith in depth.

Then the doctor went with him to the New York Athletic Club swimming pool. He sat beside him as he put his feet in the water, all the while talking faith ideas with him. As the man happened to be sensitive about being somewhat overweight, the doctor also kept reminding him challengingly that swimming reduced the waistline. Little by little he learned to swim a few strokes, and the day came when he braved the deep end of the pool.

Eventually this man went back alone to the lake of his childhood experience and waded out. When his toes could no longer touch bottom he felt the old fear coming over him. But now he had the means of surmounting it. He had faith.

He sent up a prayer, "Lord, with your help I am going to swim across this lake and end this fear forever." And he did.

Fear is the most devastating of all afflictions. Great is its power. But the power of faith is greater. Indeed it is the greatest power in the world. Fear cannot withstand it. So a sure way to shed fear is to develop faith and depend on it — live by it.

The Bible says, "For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind."

THE POWER referred to is the power of faith. Closely connected with faith is love. Trust and love go together, like the two sides of a coin. Love God, have faith and, as the Bible also says, "perfect love casteth out fear."

Also, in shedding fear it is important to develop a sound mind. We pick up negative ideas, prejudices, superstitions, obsessions of all sorts. This mental clutter gives rise to fears. But by systematically replacing negatives with positives in your thinking you can in time banish every obsessive idea and have the boon of a sound mind. The clarity of a sound mind eliminates the shadow of fear.

Once you really make up your mind to conquer your fears, your soundness of mind will come to your aid. In a sense fear is like an infection. But faith, love and a sound mind are healthy attitudes and they can build up in your mind an immunity to fear. So to shed fear build up a healthy form of thinking that will clear the fear infection from your thoughts.

Our Saviour's Lutheran to Install Pastor

Rev. Norbert J. Boer will be installed as associate pastor of Our Saviour's Lutheran Church, 370 Junipero Ave., Sunday at 11 a.m.

Rev. Dr. Gaylord Falde, president of the South Pacific District, American Lutheran Church, will conduct the rite of installation, assisted by Rev. Virgil Bjerke and Rev. A. Storvick of Our Saviour's.

Pastor Boer (pronounced "Boer," he informs us), is a Wisconsin native, whose first congregation was the one he organized in Hollywood in 1942. He has also pastored in Arcadia, Stockton, and has just completed six years as the pastor of Grace Lutheran of San Francisco, during which time he served for two terms as president of the Golden Gate Conference. He currently serves as chairman of the district Worship and Church Music Committee.

Pastor and Mrs. Boer now reside in Long Beach. One daughter is a student nurse at California Lutheran Hospital, a second a student at California Lutheran College in Thousand Oaks.

Noted Film Choir Director Here

Jester Hairston, screen and television actor, foremost Hollywood choral director, and internationally acclaimed arranger and authority on Negro spirituals, will appear Friday at Grace Methodist Church, Third Street and Junipero Avenue.

He has appeared as an actor in "The Alamo," "Summer and Smoke," "To Kill a Mockingbird," and "Gunsmoke," as well as doing the choral work for "Lilies of the Field." In that picture he was the voice of Sidney Poitier singing the theme song. He conducted his own choir in "Friendly Persuasion," "Carmen Jones" and other films.

A graduate of Tufts University and the Juilliard Institute of Music, he worked as a choral clinician and director with the famed Hall Johnson Negro Choir, and went on to train many others. He came to Hollywood in 1936 when the Hall Johnson Choir sang the music for "Green Pastures." Since then he has conducted his own choir in many films, including "Friendly Persuasion," "Carmen Jones," "Foxes of Harrow," and "Land of the Pharaohs."

JESTER HAIRSTON

In 1961 and 1963 the State Department sent him to Europe, where he taught American folk songs to singing groups in Germany, Finland, Yugoslavia, Austria, Norway, Denmark and Sweden.

The Friday program will begin at 7:15 p.m. A potluck dinner will be held at 6:30 p.m. Says Rev. Stanley Brown, pastor: "We feel very fortunate to have Mr. Hairston, and wish to share this opportunity with the community. All are invited to attend and meet him."

Minister Uses Movie 'Hawaii' to Make Theological Point on Bible 'Hang Ups'

(This article by James McKowen, pastor at First Christian Church, is reprinted from the church paper not to indicate either agreement or disagreement with what it says, but as an interesting example of using the mass media — in this case a Hollywood movie — to develop a theological point.)

HAWAII CALLS

I finally was able to see the movie, "Hawaii." I hope those of you who saw this excellent movie did not miss the point that this New England perversion of the Gospel was exactly the thing that confronted the founders of the Restoration Movement. The Rev. Mr. Hale began his ministry about the same time that Alexander Campbell began his. The narrow dogmatic mysticism of the movie was exactly the setting out of which the Restoration Movement was born.

For you who did not see the movie, it was an intensely gripping story of a Calvinistic missionary to polygamous Hawaii. His idea of preaching the Gospel was to tell them all that they were hell-bound unless they left their mates immediately.

The alternative suggested by the movie through the mouth of his pretty wife was not to take the Bible so "literally." According to the script there were only two positions open: the ridiculous and primitive bumbling of the biblicist, or the intelligent and humane activity of a saner view of Scripture — one that sees them more as myths. If we had to choose between the theology of Abner or Jerusha Hale, I'm sure few would want that loveless dogmatism of the preacher. But there is a third view which the movie didn't suggest, which, fortunately, Alexander Campbell did.

Mr. Campbell believed that God has spoken intelligently to men in and through the Gospel, and that God expects men to respond intelligently to that appeal. We do not need to adopt the awkward stance of the Calvinist who tries to believe every word of the Bible against his reason. We are to "rightly divide" the Word of Truth in order that we may learn how to reasonably accept God's offer of love.

I could not help but wonder how many similar "hang-ups" we have given intelligent men of the Gospel. No wonder there was so much rejection of the Gospel in that day. Is this the reason men reject it today? — Because of the poor translation we make in theology and life?

The difficulty is not in what the Bible says. It is in what people erroneously say it says. Our fellowship constantly tries to reshape its doctrine and life by the teaching of the New Testament. We deliberately try to speak where the Scriptures speak and to be silent where they are silent.

OOPS!

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — The Bell Telephone Co. is recalling 100,000 brand-new phone books in New Jersey's capital city.

Why?

Because of the telephone number listed in the yellow pages for the classified advertising department of the Trentonian, the morning newspaper.

The number belongs to the Times, the evening newspaper.

FROM THE PULPIT

Our apologies to the great number who attended our services last Lord's Day and could not even get into the building. Within the next few weeks we anticipate construction to begin on our new auditorium, and within six or seven months after that to have the new auditorium ready for the Lord's service.

Each week many new people are finding a church home at Calvary — a home of spiritual warmth, evangelistic fervor, and real Christian fellowship. There is still power and attractiveness in the old-fashioned gospel of Christ. Every new attempt to modernize Christianity has failed. I know of no successful substitute in the church for the gospel.

Surely the Lord is grieved at its attempts to reach people through dances, card games, bingo, and things of the world. God has far better things than these to offer. Never has He resorted to the inferior things of the world to attract humanity. "And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me."

Nothing attracts like Christ! Let us lift Him up — A Savior for sinners! Come to Calvary! Calvary is for you!

WORLD WITHOUT DISCIPLINE LED TO CHAOS'

An Epitaph to the Hippies

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

An epitaph of the hippie movement has been written by a noted psychiatrist who had ample opportunity to observe it first hand.

He is Dr. Graham B. Blaine Jr., chief of psychiatry, University Health Services, Harvard University. His report on "The Death of the Hippies" appears in the current issue of Academy Reporter, monthly journal of the Academy of Religion and Mental Health.

His remarks deserve a thoughtful hearing from religious folk who entertain the belief that hippiedom is a touching manifestation of Christian love.

To Dr. Blaine, it is pure nonsense to depict "flower children" as modern saints who have turned their backs on the crass materialism of American society to practice the precepts of Jesus.

It is equally absurd, he says, to believe that they have found happiness and serenity by "dropping out of the rat race."

The truth about hippies, says this doctor who has treated many victims of LSD, is that they are self-indulgent and unhappy people. Their bizarre costumes and hairdos, and their flamboyant conduct, is a "facade" disguising "the misery and the desolation of the human beings behind it."

But even a physician who sees through the disguise sometimes finds it difficult to sympathize with their "desperate loneliness," he says, because hippies themselves are "contemptuous of our concern and prefer to wallow in their own emotional and physical squalor."

"Before the memory of this startling group fades away entirely," he says, "we should try to learn something about why it came into existence and what message, if any, trails in its wake."

He suggests that the clue may lie in an old anecdote about a man who awoke after death to find himself in a beautiful garden, where the climate was always perfect. A servant was at hand to answer every command and fulfill every desire.

After several weeks, he was so bored that he went to the head man and announced that he'd much rather be in hell. The head man replied: "And where do you think you are?"

"Perhaps the young of this generation were driven to distraction by the affluence of today's world and did indeed fashion a private hell for themselves out of desperation," says Dr. Blaine.

Another lesson to be learned from the hippies, he says, is that injustice and social problems can't be solved by passing out flowers and talking about "love."

"Their attempts to 'live by love alone' led not to some glorious nirvana, but instead to bitterness, rivalry, and finally violence. Like the young adolescents living an unfettered existence by themselves on an island in William Golding's classic novel, 'The Lord of the Flies,' the hippies found also that a world without discipline led only to chaos."

Dr. Graham suggests that in light of the hippie experience, "situation ethics" should re-examine their assertion that "absolute standards deprive man of desirable freedom."

"The main difference between the short-lasting philosophy of the love-in generation and the long-lasting Christian religion," he says, "is the presence in the latter of absolutes which provide the structure that seems to be essential for the existence of a relatively harmonious society."

MRS. HERMAN ALEVY of host Temple Israel discusses candle-lighting ritual as churchwomen prepare for Wednesday's interfaith dialogue and tea. From left, Mrs. Joseph Hamula, 9th Ward, Latter-day Saints (Mormon); Mrs. Francis Cook, Belmont Heights Methodist Church, Mrs. Alevy, and Mrs. Harold Schoessow, Covenant Presbyterian Church. Other participants will be from All Saints Episcopal, St. Bartholomew Catholic, Grant Chapel AME, First Congregational, and Bayshore United Church of Christ.

Council Backs Viet Objectors

The Southern California Council of Churches went on record Friday in support of young men who oppose military service in Vietnam Friday on the grounds of conscience.

A resolution passed by the council's general board asked Congress to amend the Selective Service Act to provide for "selective" conscientious objection.

"A growing number of young men are faced with the cruel choice between serving in a war they sincerely believe to be immoral, or refusing service even though they are not necessarily opposed to all conceivable war," the resolution said.

"They are therefore ineligible for conscientious objector status as presently defined by law."

AT EL DORADO
Rev. Edward E. Fikse has accepted the position of minister of calling at El Dorado Park Community Church, at 3655 Norwalk Blvd. A World War II Navy chaplain, has served pastors in Iowa and Central California, and as a missionary evangelist for the Reformed Church of America founded several churches in this state.

In Pursuit of Understanding—Women of 8 Faiths Set a Sisterly Dialogue

A unique interfaith dialogue and panel discussion celebrating Brotherhood Month will be hosted Wednesday — Valentine's Day — by the Sisterhood of Temple Israel, featuring women from eight area churches and the temple.

All interested women of the area, regardless of affiliation, are invited to the "getting-to-know-you" event, which is scheduled for 1 to 3 p.m., with dessert tea, at the temple, 3538 E. Third St., said Mrs. Jules Robbins, acting president of the Sisterhood.

Participating in the program, whose theme is "Religion and the Pursuit of Understanding," will be a hostess, panelist and responder from each of the following: First Congregational Church, East Long Beach Stake of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon), St. Bartholomew Catholic Church, Grant Chapel AME Church, Belmont Heights Methodist Church, All Saints Episcopal Church, Temple Israel, Bayshore Congregational Church and Covenant Presbyterian Church.

S. Baptist Mission Head in Vietnam Backs U.S. Effort

SAIGON, South Vietnam (Baptist Press) — Strong support for the United States position in Vietnam was expressed here by three Southern Baptist missionaries who believe they voice the sentiments of all Southern Baptist missionaries in South Vietnam.

One of the three, James F. Humphries, coupled his statement with an expression of deep concern over calls by various Southern Baptist leaders in the U.S. for American withdrawal from this embattled country.

"I support wholeheartedly our U.S. government in its efforts to bring peace and freedom of choice to the Vietnamese people," said Humphries, pastor of Saigon's Trinity Baptist Church.

then we see how far apart we are."

Assisting the planning committee to realize the program, she said, was Rev. Don Lindblom, executive director of the Long Beach Area Council of Churches, as well as Rev. Charles T. Rines of All Saints Episcopal and host Rabbi Woll Kaelter.

THE CALVERTS WITH SON, BILLIE... Youngster's Future Now Bright

9-Months-Old Child Hits Navy's Heart

By JIM McCAULEY
From Our L.A. Bureau

The County Adoptions Department Friday officially credited the Navy with having a heart — over Norwalk's newest citizen.

He is Billie Steven Calvert, 9-month-old adopted son of Boatswain Mate and Mrs. Willie Calvert of 15936 S. Norwalk Blvd., Norwalk.

"Billie's future looked bleak a month ago," said a department spokesman. A home for Billie apparently couldn't be found because he had a physical handicap that required regular cortisone treatment.

Then sailed the Navy to the rescue.

Not only did the Navy

Tape Player Stolen

Burglars prowled a car owned by Florence E. Law of 39955 Falcon Ave., while it was parked near Carson Boulevard and Harvey Way Friday and removed a stereo tape player valued at $169, Long Beach police said.

family Calverts adopt Billie last month after learning of his plight, but other heart-warming developments followed.

Capt. A. W. Slifer and the entire crew of the USS Gridley, then in Long Beach, turned out to greet ship mate Calvert's new adopted son at a welcoming ceremony.

The Navy handed over to Billie a six-month supply of cortisone, including 200 syringes and needles. That will compensate for Billie's bodily deficiency in cortisone.

Navy personnel in Long

Beach showered Billie with toys, clothing, a savings account and a United States savings bond.

The USS Gridley and Calvert are now bound for Southeast Asia.

But, in its wake came this official comment from the County Adoptions Department.

"The Navy has heart."

Oil Revenue Hike to L.B. Urged

Another complaint that major oil companies operating on the Long Beach tide-lands are not paying enough for crude oil produce was filed this week with the City Council.

Conrad A. Fischer of T&F Oil Co., 3204 California Ave., urged the city to "exert pressure" on major oil producers for a price hike, contending the city could "increase its income terrifically."

Last month, City Manager John R. Mansell told councilmen oil companies are still paying the same price — a average of about $2.25 a barrel — that they paid 10 years ago.

Fischer, in a letter to Councilman Paul R. Deats, said the major oil companies reduced the price of crude in 1957. The reduction averaged about 25 percent in the Los Angeles basin, he said.

During the past 10 years, Fischer said, the price has not gone up a penny, but the costs of drilling and production equipment and services has increased "at the very least 30 per cent."

Fischer acknowledged that his interest is to increase the income of independent oil producers as well as that of the City of Long Beach.

He urged prompt action, warning that if the city

waits until after the initial production has "hit its peak and perhaps declined," it will suffer "a large loss" in revenue.

VALENTINE POSTAGE RISES

Postage for mailing Valentines one ounce or lighter is now six cents, Postmaster David Selcer told patrons Friday.

He explained the first-class postage rate will provide jet flight service for Valentines to servicemen in Vietnam and other overseas locations, as well as airlift treatment for greeting cards addressed to areas more than 250 miles from Long Beach.

Four Technical Fouls, Rams Prove Too Much for Panthers

By TOM BARDEEN

Jordan lost a basketball game twice Friday night to Millikan High.

On the floor, the Panthers took a 61-52 beating from the Rams. In the stands the Jordan fans lost by default to the referee.

Suffering a 13-point setback in the first quarter, the Panthers were never able to reorganize long enough to close the point spread until late in the game.

With five minutes remaining in the game, Jordan's Glenn Olson hit from the outside, Andy Anderson dropped in a 15-foot jump shot, and Gary Hanel stole the ball to drive down court for a layup. The Panthers were behind 46-37, but had momentum.

With a full press on, Millikan's Pinola threw all the way across court to Greg Engel for a layup, Jordan's woes began.

Step by step with Engel, Olson fouled him, and he went out of the game on fouls.

From the Jordan bench, a towel flew on to the floor. The first of four technical fouls was called.

Jordan coach Bob Cook got the next, an argumentative Jordan fan the third — plus an escorted trip to the

Wilson's Decker Star in Overtime

By DAVE MILLER

Steve Decker converted a free throw with 12 seconds remaining to give Wilson High a chance at a 64-59 overtime Moore League victory over host Downey Friday.

Decker, a reserve guard, tied the score at 56-all and then scored four points in the overtime period as the Bruins outscored Downey 8-3 in the extra three minutes.

Downey, now 1-6 in the league, was paced by Wayne Burt's 20 points, who led all scorers.

Stan Lintner scored 13 points to lead Wilson. Five Bruin players hit double figures.

It's U.S. Against UN Indoors at Forum

By JOHN DIXON

It's the United States against the United Nations in the ninth L.A. Indoor Games tonight at the Forum.

More than 250 athletes will compete in the 3½-hour run-jump carnival. Competitors from 10 countries will oppose the best from the U.S.

Outstanding event appears to be the two-mile.

It matches Ron Clarke of Australia, owner of three world distance records; George Young, aiming at his third Olympic Games steeplechase; Tracy Smith, who holds the indoor three-mile record; Aussie Kerry O'Brien, unbeaten at two miles indoors, and four other veterans of the splinter courses.

The mile features Olyeg Raiko of Russia, Bobo

Tummler of West Germany, Neill Duggan of England, Tom Von Ruden of the Long Beach Pacific Coast Club Track and Field Assn., and Dave Wilborn of Oregon. All are sub-four minute gallopers.

Two of the periest damsels in track, Mary Rand of England and Tatyana Talishova of Russia, will exercise in both the 60-yard hurdles and long jump, in which they rank among the world's best.

There will be a score of other powerful duels, including the Soviet's Gennadiy Bliznyetsov against Bob Seagren in the pole vault; Bob Beamon, Ralph Boston and Russian Tatu Lepik in the long jump; Earl McCulloch against Willie Davenport in the 60-hurdles, and Randy Matson facing George Woods and Parry O'Brien in the shot-put.

First event, the one-mile walk, commences at 7 p.m.

Man the Lifeboats, It's Time for 12th Beach Run Today

By DAVE DANIEL

When the Pacific Ocean Cross Country Championships are run today at noon there may be as much water overhead as underfoot.

But it won't bother the participants in the 12th Beach Run between Belmont Pier and the Long Beach Arena as they grapple for position close to the water's edge, where footing is firm.

Dr. Jack Rose will raise his starter's pistol at noon, commencing the featured 4.4-mile open race that will start at the Cherry Ave. Lifeguard Station.

The runners, whose numbers should reach close to 100, will run east to Belmont Pier, turn around and race to the Long Beach Arena, make another turn and return to the Lifeguard station starting point.

Following the open distance race, 4-man, 4-mile relay races will be staged at 12:45 with both junior college and college divisions running at the same time.

Top teams entered include Occidental, Cal State Long Beach and Chapman in the college division, while Long Beach City College, Santa Ana, Golden West and Orange Coast are expected to head the JC division.

The high school competition will begin at 1:15.

Late registration will take place at 11 a.m. There is an entry fee, except for prep runners. Participants must have an AAU card, which can be obtained at the registration table.

The event, which has been held in the rain in some years, is sponsored by the Pacific Coast Track Club, 49er Booster Club and Cal State Long Beach, under jurisdiction of the SPAAAU.

Damascus, Tobin Bronze Stakes Doubleheader at S'Anita

By ERNIE MASON
Racing fans get a double treat today at Santa Anita when two spectacular horses, Damascus and Tobin Bronze, head a stakes doubleheader.

Horse of the year Damascus tops a field of seven, including two challengers which were $100,000 derby winners in 1967, in the $100,000-added Charles H. Strub Stakes, originally scheduled for last Saturday but postponed one week because of a horseman's boycott.

Tobin Bronze, the Australian champion, and 13 other 4-year-olds and up were entered in the $30,000-added San Marcos Handicap, which will be run as the sixth race.

The Strub, a 1 1/4 mile test for 4-year-olds, is the nation's first $100,000 race of 1968. If all seven entries start, the purse for the race, the featured eighth on the program, will gross $120,000 with $75,200 going to the winner.

Among Damascus' challengers are Rukens, the Santa Anita Derby champion of last year, and Tumble Wind, Hollywood Derby victor in 1967.

The other entries are Rivet, Proud Land, Nashua Pilot and Most Host.

With Damascus' usual jockey Bill Shoemaker out of action because of a broken leg suffered in a racing mishap here last month, the call to pilot the great thoroughbred went to Ron Turcotte, who flew from Florida. It was Turcotte's second trip since he flew here last weekend too, but the boycott prevented him from riding in competition.

Damascus is top weight at 126 pounds, eight pounds more than second weighted Tumble Wind ridden by Manuel Ycaza and nine pounds above Rukens' 117 weight.

A victory by Damascus would move him up to eighth place on the list of all-time money winners and bring his earnings near the $1 million figure. The horse of the year was brought west primarily for the Strub Stakes and prepared for it with victories in the Malibu and San Fernando Stakes.

Tobin Bronze, hailed as Australia's greatest thoroughbred since Phar Lap, goes as an entry with another Charles Whittingham-trained horse, Deck Hand, in the San Marcos over the 1 1/4-mile turf course.

His competition includes such well-known runners as Jungle Road, Biggs, Moonlight, Pass The Brandy and Dr. Isby. Tobin Bronze was top weighted at 125 pounds, nine pounds above Pass The Brandy and Jungle Road.

Kidnapers Get Life Sentences

Van Nuys Superior Court Judge Raymond R. Roberts sentenced two kidnappers to life in prison Friday with the observation that the victim — a banker's wife — is "alive and healthy today" because the two men feared the death penalty.

Judge Roberts, speaking to those who want to see the death penalty abolished, said the three most recent kidnappings cases before him had one thing in common.

"All of the kidnappers went out of their way to see that no harm came to any of their victims," he declared.

The judge said only the threat of the death penalty kept Edison LeGrande Little, 26, and Robert Shearer, 22, from abusing the wife of the Sherman Oaks banker. They held prisoner until their husband came up with ransom money.

Pimlico Winds Up Meeting

Associated Press
Pimlico's thoroughbred meeting closes today with the $25,000-added Pimlico Stakes, a six-furlong dash that has attracted a field of 14.

Clover Foot, winner of three of five as a 2-year-old, Set Aglow and Juvenile John are among the better 3-year-olds in the race that may produce some Kentucky Derby talent.

Racing in Maryland shifts to Bowie on Monday when a 52-day meeting opens that runs through April 20.

Narragansett's feature is the $7,500 Newport Handicap at six furlongs. A field of nine, including Sweep the Deck, seeking a third victory in four starts, is entered.

The Fair Grounds' big race of the day is the $15,000 Pelletier Handicap at six furlongs. Eight are entered including top-weighted R. Thomas, 126, and Diplomat Way, 125, who will run coupled with Beaufort II.

Oakland Park's $10,000 King Cotton Handicap has attracted a field of 17 for the 5 1/2-furlong dash with Box Man, 118, the likely favorite.

The Bougainvillea will be the feature at Hialeah in Florida with 12 due to go 1-3-16 miles on the grass in the final stepping stone to the $75,000 Hialeah Turf Cup Feb. 24.

Four Found Dead After Air Crash

PLACERVILLE (UPI) — A helicopter recovery crew pulled through a driving Sierra snowstorm to reach the crash site of a missing light airplane Friday and reported all four aboard were killed.

The crew found the plane at the 9,500-foot level of Pyramid Peak southwest of Lake Tahoe. They radioed that the victims were three men and a woman.

The plane left Reno Tuesday night and vanished after routinely reporting its position to the Federal Aviation Agency.

The men were presumed to be Bruce Leer, 37, a part-time pilot; Nick Kolo, an apartment complex owner and building contractor; and Thomas Blackhear, 30, owner of the plane and a student pilot, all of West Sacramento.

A Nice Show, but Let's Not Go Gaga

By GEORGE ERES
 TV-Radio Editor

I have three television critics' reviews of the Wednesday night Fred Astaire Show and they all can't seem to find enough superlatives to describe the 68-year-old's achievement.

Rick DuBrow of UPI, for instance, doesn't want to wait for the May Emmy Awards to turn the trophies over to Astaire.

Cynthia Lowry of AP says it was a high mark of good taste, that he's "lost none of his skills" it was a delight, etc.

"Helm" of Variety said: "It's the rarest pleasure of this or any other season."

IT WASN'T a bad show but I hardly think it was all that good. Astaire is a real pro and he does a fine job, but there is a tendency to see Astaire at 68 as he was, say, 15 or 20 years ago instead of as he is.

He just doesn't move the way he used to and all this exuberance over the fact that "at his age" he is an outstanding performer is very nice and kind and a schmaltzy kind of sentimentalism which I'm not necessarily agin' but which just doesn't tell it like it is.

I don't particularly care to knock Astaire for his trying to identify with the NOW generation. There's no reason why he shouldn't like that sort of stuff if he wants to. I even think he made it a bit more palatable by giving it a place in the background instead of up front where it's of no account at all.

THE END OF 'MAYA'

Final show in the "Maya" series airs at 7:30 tonight, Ch. 4. In the episode are (from left) E. J. Andre, Sajid Kahan, the elephant Maya, Jay North and unidentified youngster. Show will be replaced by "The Saint" next Saturday.

I DON'T know how many times Astaire has done some of the same things over and over again. He did them better than anyone else at one time and no one does the things he does with more class. But I think that tired old routine of the tough guy and his moll and the shootout with the cops has been done to death, whether you set it to "Slaughter on Fifth Ave." or "Limelight Blues."

I don't want to give the impression that I went over and turned off the set. I guess I turned it on with too much expectation.

JERRY LEWIS, Milton Berle, Lawrence Welk,

YOUNG COLUMBUS XII TO PORTUGAL Y ESPAÑA

TWA StarStream

WILL FLY YOUR NEWSPAPERBOY
ON A 13-DAY "TRIP OF A LIFETIME"

Investigate an I. P-T
Newspaperboy career for FUN and PROFIT.

On March 23, two fortunate newspaperboys from the metropolitan Long Beach area will be flown to New York. That will be the first leg of their 13-day adventure covering Spain and Portugal. As winners of the Young Columbus XII contest sponsored by PARADE and the Independent Press-Telegram, they will board a luxurious TWA Super Jet and fly over the Atlantic to these storybook lands. Ahead of them will be 13 never-to-be-forgotten days filled with the excitement of touring the captivating countries of Spain and Portugal.

While in Spain Independent Press-Telegram's Young Columbus XII winners will take a motor trip to Escorial, about 30 miles north of Madrid. In this delightful town which lies in the foothills of the Guadarrama Mountains, is found San Lorenzo del Escorial—monastery, church, museum, Palace and burial place of Spanish kings. It was built by Felipe II to commemorate the victory over the French in the Battle of San Quentin on August 10, 1557.

The Young Columbus newspaperboys will be fascinated by the Monastery itself which actually contains 16 courts, 1200 doors, 2673 windows, 86 staircases, 89 fountains, and 300 rooms.

Following the tour, the boys will head for the hotel where lunch will be taken in pleasant surroundings and an elegant atmosphere. In Madrid, the enthusiastic Young Columbus party will pass through the same entrance where the citizens of Madrid fought to keep Napoleon's invading troops from entering the city on December 3, 1808. The gateway was so seriously damaged during the battle that it required extensive repairs, not completed until 1869.

One memorably exciting occasion for our winning newspaperboys will be the day they spend in artistic and historical Toledo. The past has been miraculously preserved in this Castilian city which is just 40 miles southwest of Madrid and is almost completely surrounded by the historic Tagus River.

The original name of Toledo was Toletum as Caesar called it. Considered important as a fortress, even today, the Young Columbus group will see the thick walls with their towers and archery slits. The Moors also recognized its strategic 200,000 population and it was the world center for the finest steel.

CUSTOMIZED CAMARO

Don't be the last one to see the newest sportster in town—be the first in and first out with our Customized Camaro, the latest in Hugger happenings! Take any Camaro you like, then pick one of four new hues: brilliant Le Mans Blue; bright Rallye Green; lustrous British Green; or rich Corvette Bronze. Add new mag-spoke wheel covers, special new sports striping, whitewall tires and finish it up with a racy rear deck spoiler. Sportier yet: order houndstooth check interior. Check with the specialists in our Chevrolet Sports Department; they'll put you straight about Camaro or any of the other sporty models in the '68 Chevrolet lineup.
